The screenshot displays the Microsoft SQL Server Management Studio interface. The central query editor shows the following SQL code:

```
USE master
GO
IF NOT EXISTS (
SELECT name
FROM sys.databases
WHERE name = N'SoftpediaTest'
)
CREATE DATABASE [SoftpediaTest]
GO
ALTER DATABASE [SoftpediaTest] SET QUERY_STORE=ON

The Messages pane at the bottom indicates "Commands completed successfully." The Object Explorer on the left shows the server hierarchy, including the newly created database 'SoftpediaTest'. The Properties pane on the right shows connection details for the current session.

I also ended up using Fusion and a Windows client I have tried just about everything for MAC and Linux and never found anything worthwhile.. These components are free, for Mac, Windows, and more Applicable to many of the other answers here -- the Type 1 JDBC-to-ODBC Bridge that most are referring to is the one Sun built in to and bundled with the JVM.. It requires up a few gigabytes Visual Studio 2015 is a rich, integrated development environment for creating stunning programs for Windows, Android, and iOS, in addition to modern web programs and cloud solutions. The first one is Aqua Data Studio which costs about $450 per user, which is a barely acceptable, but cheap compared to DBArtizan and others with similar functionality (but MS only)..) This solution isn't free All of the above can be used with the ODBC Drivers for (or) we also produce.. Bottom line is nothing free is worthwhile, nor were most commercial non windows products However, now (March 2010) I believe there are two serious contenders and worthwhile versions for the MAC and Linux which have a low cost associated with them.. JVM/JRE/JDK documentation has always advised against using this built-in except in experimental scenarios, or when no other option exists, because this component was built as a proof-of-concept, and was never intended for production use.. Nothing compared to DBArtizan on Windows as far as I was concerned and I was prepared to use it with Fusion or VirtualBox. ae05505a44 Imovie Free Video Editor For Mac
